LATE OF THE MEDICAL STAFF OF SOUTHERN INDIA.

VOL. I.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR *
LONGMAN, REES, ORME, BROWN, AND GREEN,
PATERNOSTER-ROW.

HINDU MEDICINE INVESTIGATED

1) AINSLIE, Whitelaw. Materia indica; or, some account of those articles which are employed by the hindoos, and other eastern nations, in their medicine, arts, and agriculture...

London. Printed for Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown, and Green, 1826. Second edition.

8vo. In two volumes. [7], x-xxiv, 654; xxxix, [1], 604pp. Without half-titles. Modern black half-cloth, marbled paper boards, ruled and lettered in gilt. Occasional ink stamps of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland.

A revised and expanded two-volume edition of East India Company physician Whitelaw Ainslie's (1767-1837) exhaustive materia medica concerning the medical artefacts of the Indian subcontinent. First printed in 1813 as the Materia medica of Hindustan, Ainslie's work was the first book-length study of Indian medicines published by a British author.

2) [ALLAHABAD]. Code of municipal laws & rules allahabad municipality.

Allahabad. Printed at the Municipal Press, 1892.

[2], 3, [1], 35, [1], 6, [20], 61-[62], 9-19, [1], 16, 7, [1], 92-94, [21], 3, [1], [7], 21, [1], 3, [1], 9, [1], 15, [1], 11, [3], 11, [1], 9, [1], 4, [2], 2pp. Quarto. Twentieth century light blue cloth boards. Rubbed, lightly marked, a few minute wormholes, spine dulled. Hinges exposed, leaves lightly browned, outer margin of title page trimmed, occasional marginal text marking and numbers in red and blue pencil, a few marginal tears, occasional minor wormholes, scattered spotting.

A compilation of municipal acts relating to the governance of Allahabad, including, inter alia, legislation concerning the protection of bird and animal species, cruelty to animals, administration of vaccinations, the maintenance of burial grounds, water supply, the conduct of the police, and taxes on horses and hackney carriages.

Rare; Library Hub records Papers concerning the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act of 1883 at the BL, which may or may not include portions of this work. The erratic pagination suggests the binding together of relevant acts/sections of acts with a printed general title page (the section relating to burials lacks the initial ff. bearing points 1-4).

Economic Committee, the Advisory Council of the Board of Trade, the Advisory Committee of the Department of Overseas Trade and the Empire Cotton Growing Corporation Executive Committee¹—and by this means is able to support and promote Indian interests.

He also has duties in connection with "Commercial Publicity" in general, as opposed to his duties towards individual Indian manufacturers and traders. Thus he took part in the organization of the Indian section of the British Empire Exhibition, and of the British Industries Fair (1926); he takes part in Empire Products Exhibitions and other movements intended to advertise Imperial products, and he writes for the Press and assists in the preparation of Indian and Empire numbers and supplements for various periodicals. In 1926 a special "Trade Publicity Officer" was appointed to assist the Commissioner,² and a further increase in staff is under consideration.³ It has been suggested that when the necessary funds are forthcoming similar appointments should be made in other countries. An "Indian Chamber of Commerce" has recently been founded in London, with the object of promoting Indian trade abroad, and it is said that a membership of over one hundred has already been secured, and that practically every Indian firm trading in this country has joined.⁴

Finally, it may be mentioned that the Government has attempted to deal with the question of the far too prevalent adulteration of Indian produce,⁵ but has concluded that the matter can best be dealt with by voluntary agency. Both the Provincial Governments and a number of voluntary trade associations have taken measures to solve this and allied marketing problems.⁶ The most hopeful line of advance would appear to be the widespread imitation of the policy adopted by cotton merchants, of setting up a central committee to organize and co-ordinate the trade as a whole. The "Central Cotton Committee" has been hailed as a "masterpiece of co-ordinated activity, financially and administratively self-contained."⁷ and

² Moral and Material Progress of India, 1926-27, p. 209. This appointment has since been made permanent.

⁴ Times, June 23, 1928, "Indian Trade Abroad."

⁵ Indian Year Book, 1923, p. 369.

⁶ For instance, Acts were passed in Bengal and Burma in 1917 to prevent the adulteration of gins, and the Bombay Cotton Transport Act has done much to maintain the quality of cotton marketed in the Presidency (Moral and Material Progress of India, 1926-27, p. 121). It is hardly possible to accomplish the part that might be played by the Co-operative movement in improving the marketing of Indian produce.

⁷ Times Trade and Engineering Supplement, February 20, 1924.

it has been suggested that the same system might be introduced into the jute, wheat, sugar, rice, oilseeds, and other trades.

The better marketing of Indian produce may also be assisted in the future by imperial co-operation, which was initiated in this sphere in 1926 by the establishment of the Empire Marketing Board (in the United Kingdom), supported by an annual Government grant. This body aims at stimulating the marketing of home and imperial produce by making grants for the promotion of research, economic investigations, publicity, and education, and although so far it has dealt mainly with the staple products of the self-governing Dominions, in the future its efforts will be extended to the products of all parts of the Empire.¹

3. COMMERCIAL POLICY AND THE FUTURE

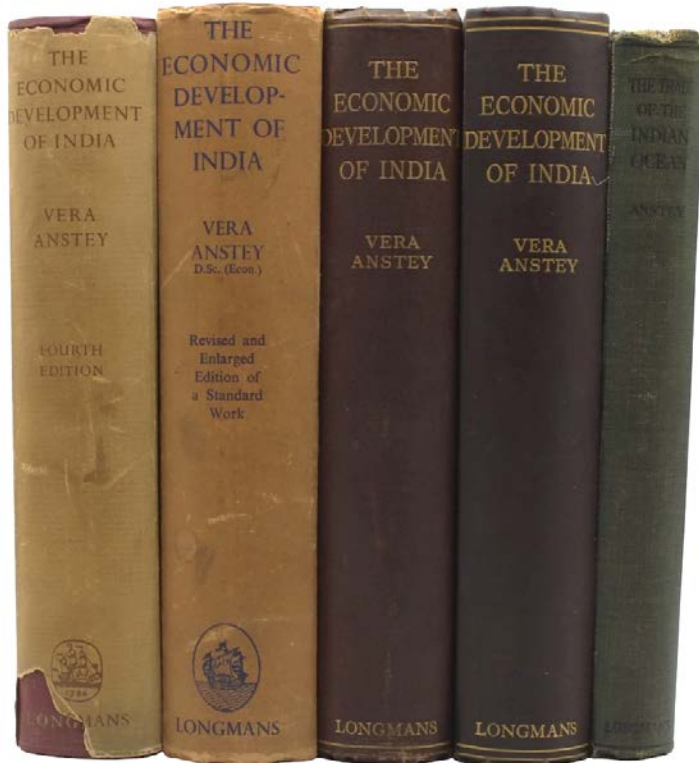

We have now reviewed the recent course of Indian trade, noting in particular the effects of the war on the size, nature, and direction of trade, and the revolution in commercial policy. It can no longer with truth be said that India is becoming more and more dependent upon exports of primary products and imports of industrial necessities, that the British connection prevents the expansion of Indian industries, nor that the Government ignores Indian interests and desires in formulating commercial policy. Nevertheless it must be admitted that the progressively more constructive commercial policy adopted has been gradually forced by circumstances upon the Government, rather than deliberately adopted as the logical consequence of definite principles and ideals, and that the economic problem of India has not, even yet, been faced as a whole, and hence has lacked coherency and co-ordination; and has, above all, been seriously handicapped by financial stringency. The latter defect has prevented full advantage from being reaped from the measures taken to strengthen the bonds between Government and the commercial community, although these have been conceived along the right lines, whilst the policy of "discriminating protection" has, so far, proved at best a partial success. The question now arises whether or not the tariff policy pursued is really appropriate to Indian circumstances and needs.

In the first place it should not be forgotten that the conditions under which "discriminating protection" have been applied have

² The Majority Report of the Panel Committee says (p. 71): "It is clear that the mere imposition of protective duties . . . will not by itself produce that full industrial development which we desire," and that considerations of national in all such cases. The report proceeds to advocate supplementary measures concerned with education, technical training, increased mobility of labour, and railway rates.

With original publisher's printed tan dustwrapper. A trifle rubbed, dustwrapper worn and marked with loss to spine panel. Inked ownership inscription of Vera Anstey to recto of FFEP. With a loosely inserted T.L.S. from the publisher requesting Anstey provide a blurb for this edition, on the verso of which Anstey has drafted said blurb.

A collection of five publications by economist Vera Anstey (1889-1976), including her own copies of four editions of her authoritative survey of the economic development of India; the second edition marked up with her manuscript revisions, additions, and corrections.

Anstey's interest in Indian economics stemmed from her tenure as an examiner in economic theory for the BCom degree at the Sydenham College of Commerce and Economics in Bombay between 1914 and 1921. On her return to England Anstey took a position at the London School of Economics as an assistant lecturer in economic history. She remained at the LSE until 1964. Her books The Trade of the Indian Ocean (1929), The Economic Development of India (1929), and Introduction to Economics for Students in India and Pakistan (1964) were well-received and became standard texts.

Λ
GENERAL REPORT ON THE YUSUFZAIS,
IN SIX CHAPTERS, WITH A MAP.

By H. W. BELLEW, Assistant Surgeon, Corps of Guides.

LAHORE:
PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT PRESS,
1864.

6) BELLEW, H[enry] W[alter]. A general report on the yusufzais, in six chapters, with a map.

Labore. Printed at the Government Press, 1864. First edition.

8vo. [2], ix, [1], 266, [2], xii pp. With a large folding map. Modern grey half-cloth, marbled paper boards, ruled and lettered in gilt. Occasional ink stamps of King's College, Newcastle.

A rare report on the condition of the Pashtun Yusufzai tribe of Afghanistan compiled by army medical officer and amateur orientalist Henry Walter Bellew (1834-1892).

The report was no doubt occasioned by the recent conclusion of the Ambela Campaign, a punitive expedition undertaken by British forces in an effort to suppress a sect of Yusufzai malcontents at Malka on the North-West Frontier. The British suffered heavy casualties but ultimately succeeded in quelling hostilities in the region.

MAPPING THE INDIA SUBCONTINENT

- 7) BOMFORD, Major G. Survey of india. Professional paper No. 28.
The readjustment of the indian triangulation.
Dehra Dūn. Printed at the Geodetic Branch Office Survey of India, 1939. First edition.

Folio. viii, 109pp, [1]. With a folding map and 13 folding plates.
Original publisher's green cloth-backed printed buff paper boards.
Extremities rubbed and dampstained, early inked ownership inscription to head of upper board. Internally clean and crisp.

The sole edition of British Army officer and geodesist Guy Bomford's (1899-1996) significant paper detailing the complex process of recalculating and refining the colossal geodetic network covering the Indian subcontinent - essential for accurate mapping - through incorporating new and revised data and adjusting for historic errors in angles and distances; an essential part of the broader Great Trigonometrical Survey.

THE MYSTERIES OF BRAHMOISM - UNRECORDED

- 9) [BRAHMOISM]. Asrār Brahm Panth: Mysteries of the Brahoism. Lahore. Ganesb Prakash Press, 1886. First edition.

12mo. [104]pp. Lithographed throughout. Uncut. Stitched, as issued, in original publisher's buff wrappers. Extremities rubbed and marked. Leaves browned, marginal chipping/short tears throughout. Presentation copy, inscribed by the author to title page.

An apparently unrecorded work denouncing the tenets of the Brahmo Samaj, the societal component of the monotheistic Hindu reformist movement, Brahmoism. Authored by Lal Radh Kishen Mehta in conjunction with Lala Manohar Lal, the foremost propagandists of rival reform movement Arya Samaj, the publication was the first contribution in what would come to be a protracted pamphlet war. Although the two movements shared a great deal in turns of fundamental ideology - both objected to the practice of polygamy and child marriage, both abhorred caste discrimination, and both promoted female education - the Arya objected to Brahmo conciliatory approach toward foreign religion, preferring instead to emphasise the supremacy of Hinduism and champion a return to Vedic tradition. The quantity of publications issued during the prolonged debate was significant enough that in 1888 Lahore-based publisher Salig Ram compiled an extensive volume reprinting a large quantity of the tracts and periodical articles contributed by both sides under the title Sadharan Brahm Samaj Ka Paigambar.

SILK PLAYBILL FOR ENGLISH THEATRICALS IN INDIA

- 10) [CANTONMENT THEATRE]. Cantonment theatre, secunderabad. The gentleman amateurs. Under entire new management, This Theatre will open on monday, the 22nd, and wednesday, the 24th of January, 1844, with a Comedy in 2 Acts, with new Scenery, Dresses, and Decorations; entitled "the youthful queen;" or, "christine of sweden!"...
Secunderabad. Printed for J. Torrick, [1844].

Dimensions 230 x 350 mm. Single leaf cream silk broadside, neatly laid down on modern mount board. Old central horizontal fold.

An apparently unrecorded silk playbill advertising an evening's entertainment celebrating the reopening, under new management, of the Cantonment Theatre, Secunderabad in 1844, commencing with a production of Jean-François-Alfred Bayard's (1796-1853) obscure two-act comedy The Youthful Queen (1828?). Precious few references regarding the theatre survive, and indeed no other playbills, either on silk or paper, appear extant.

18) ELLIOTT, Charles Alfred. The chronicles of oonao. A district in oudh. Allahabad. Printed at the Allahabad Mission Press, 1862. First edition.

8vo. [3], vi-ix, [3], 156pp. With a folding table and a tipped-in slip apologising for the potential failure by the publisher to include three maps in certain copies - as is the case in this instance. Modern dark green half-cloth, ruled and lettered in gilt, marbled paper boards. Leaves browned, coloured pencil shelf-marks to title page, marginal wormtracks running throughout (occasionally naively repaired), occasional early manuscript corrections to text.

The sole edition, printed for private circulation, of a study of the Unao district of Oudh, compiled by sometime Lieutenant Governor of Bengal Sir Charles Alfred Elliott (1835-1911).

In 1858 Elliott began a five-year tenure as assistant commissioner in Oudh. While serving in Unao district, he began to collect information concerning the history and folklore of the region, believing that 'a knowledge of the popular traditions and ballads gives its possessor both influence over the people and the key to their hearts'. The resulting publication pioneered ethnographic studies in India.

22) HARVEY, R. E. Memories of happy days spent in sunny India 1919-1920.

Folio. Manuscript on paper. [108]ff. Illustrated with 185 sepia photographs loosely mounted across 61 leaves, all with extensive manuscript annotations. Contemporary beige cloth-backed buff card wrappers. Extremities heavily rubbed and marked. Occasional light spotting. Seven photographs removed, and several spaces where photographs were apparently never inserted, another leaf with three photographs removed and annotations struck-through (seemingly by Harvey). Four large photographs of notable sites (including the Taj Mahal) loosely inserted.

An appealing and unusually well-captioned album charting the life of a British soldier of the 4th Cavalry Regiment stationed in Meerut, Uttar Pradesh between 1919 and 1920, comprised of near two hundred photographs, all extensively annotated in a light conversational style that serves to narrate his experiences of the country and her people.

The album almost entirely concerns itself with Harvey's life in Meerut, although it also includes photographs of Jullundur and Barielly, as well as a series of six 'pictures taken at Delhi Fort'. Rich in detail, it describes both the Indian workers and officials and British soldiers who composed the milieu of Harvey's daily life, records his observations of the city around him, and documents military events and parades.

8vo. xx, 334pp. With a half-title. Contemporary gilt-tooled tree-calf, contrasting red morocco lettering-piece. A trifle rubbed, spine sunned.

A decidedly handsome copy, in well-preserved contemporary calf, of the first edition of the first translation into English of the Hitopadesha, a collection of political maxims presented through animal fables, by influential orientalist and sometime East India Company librarian Sir Charles Wilkins (bap. 1749, d. 1836).

Wilkins, a pioneer of European knowledge of ancient Indian literature and the Sanskrit language, was responsible both for the first English translation of the Bhagavad Gita and for designing and casting a fount of type for printing Bengali which subsequently allowed for the publication of the first typeset book in the language, earning him the moniker 'the Caxton of India'.

Lahore. [s.n.], 1870. Third edition, revised & improved.

8vo. [6], 104pp. Original publisher's printed green wrappers. Extremities worn. Leaves browned.

'I have written in Persian, the following few essays on various moral subjects, with the view of improving the moral character of my countrymen, and have set forth in verse, (which is more impressive than prose), the advantages of morality against the evils of immorality'.

An apparently unrecorded third edition of a compilation of moralising Persian language verse essays - preserved in original unsophisticated state - published by Rai Kunhya Lall (1830-1888), executive engineer in British India.

In his prefatory remarks, Lall states that the first edition of 1,000 copies was 'exhausted in the course of 2 years'. The second edition, also comprised of 1,000 copies, appeared in 1869 and was depleted within six months.

'The above rapid sale of the book, affords the author the greatest satisfaction, that his poems are so highly appreciated by the public, as means of improving the moral character of his countrymen'.

Lall, a prominent figure in the expansion and development of public works in Lahore, was the author of several texts concerning Indian history, notably including an account of the Sepoy Rebellion, Tarikh-i baghāvat-i Hind 1857 (1882), and Tarikh-i Labaur, one of the earliest guides to Lahore.

Engraved for the East India Register

- 31) MATHISON, John. MASON, Alexander Way. The east-india register and directory, for 1807...
London. Printed by Cox, Son, and Baylis, [1807].

12mo. 402pp. With a hand-coloured engraved folding map and three folding tables. Original publisher's printed buff wrappers. Rubbed, marked, and dulled, loss to lower corner of upper wrapper, spine worn. Contemporary manuscript list of new India board members to verso of upper wrapper, map and initial three gatherings dampstained, map and title page dust-soiled, small hole to lower margin of leaf C1.

The official record of all persons associated with the East India Company (EIC), corrected to the 15th December, 1806. The register meticulously records the names, positions, and geographical stations of the thousands of EIC's employees in the various civil, military, and marine establishments. It additionally lists the names of all mariners involved the India trade (including those not directly employed by the Company); the names of merchant vessels employed on the same; as well as the shipping returns for the period. The register was compiled from authorised sources by John Mathison and Alexander Way Mason, who were employed at the Company's headquarters in London, the East India House. The EIC issued the first edition of the register and directory series in 1800 under the title, A New Oriental Register and East-India Directory; this was changed to The East-India Register and Directory in 1803; the final edition appeared in 1858, the year that the EIC lost its charter, giving way to Crown rule over India. In many years, two editions of the directory were issued, one in January, and another updated second edition, issued in July.

All issues of the register are scarce, with early editions, such as the present example, being especially uncommon.

Folio. Contemporary gilt-ruled half-calf, marbled paper boards. Extremities worn, boards detached, without lettering-piece. Recent ink stamp of the Birmingham Assay Office to front blank fly-leaf, scattered spotting.

Two summations of speeches concerning the finances of the East India Company delivered before Parliament by 'Minister for India' Henry Dundas, Viscount Melville (1742-1811).

Dundas presents a remarkably favourable account of the Company's affairs. In 1801, upon his retirement from office, the directors were disposed to reward Dundas for his financial acumen and laudatory support and duly conferred a pension of £2,000 per annum. This sum was granted to his wife as Dundas refused to accept any personal pecuniary remuneration.

HEADS of Mr. DUNDAS's SPEECH,

ON THE

EAST-INDIA COMPANY,

25th MARCH 1800.

WHEN the Finances of the East-India Company were last submitted to the consideration of Parliament, it was stated, that from a disappointment in the receipt of the documents from India, the directions of the Act of the 1794 could not possibly be complied with, and that the accounts then before the House were moved for, in order that regularity might be preserved. The prospect was at the same time held forth, that the accounts of the subsequent year would be brought forward at the prescribed period. The occasion of the delay which again unfortunately occurred, having been explained by the Court of Directors, it only remains for me to express my regret, that the established order of investigation of this truly important branch of the British Interests should have suffered interruption; although I am fully aware, that during a period of warfare, the contingencies to which the dispatch or arrival of shipping must necessarily be exposed, will ever render it difficult, if not impossible, to calculate with any degree of exactness, on the receipt of the books of accounts from India. It is, notwithstanding the disappointments now noticed, very satisfactory to remark, that the attention of the Government abroad to the directions sent out on the subject of finance has been very conspicuous; and the particular orders issued by them to every department in this branch of the service, warrant the expectation of a continuation, not only of the precision and accuracy which I have, upon different occasions, found reason to commend, but also of every possible exertion to insure the receipt, in due time, of the materials to enable the Court of Directors to furnish the annual statements required of them.

From what has been observed, the Committee are prepared for the information, that the Statements now before them are those which should have been presented in May last. It might be urged, as I took occasion to remark when I last addressed the Committee, in circumstances nearly similar, that a prospect exists, that the Accounts of the next year will, at a period not very distant, be brought forward, when those of the two years might be considered at the same time; but the disappointments which have happened give additional weight to the reason thus adduced.

37) PITHAWALLA, Prof. M[anek] B[enjanji]. Sind's changing map: An Album Containing 51 Old and Rare Maps of Sind with Critical and Explanatory Notes on them.

Karachi. [Printed by Alex. Fonseca at the "Union" Press], 1938. First edition.

Folio. [2], 10pp, [2]. With 10 folding lithographic plates and a terminal leaf of publisher's advertisements. Original publisher's cloth-backed printed buff paper boards. Heavily rubbed, marked, and sunned. Hinges exposed, pastedowns sprung, some short tears to plates at gutter, scattered spotting.

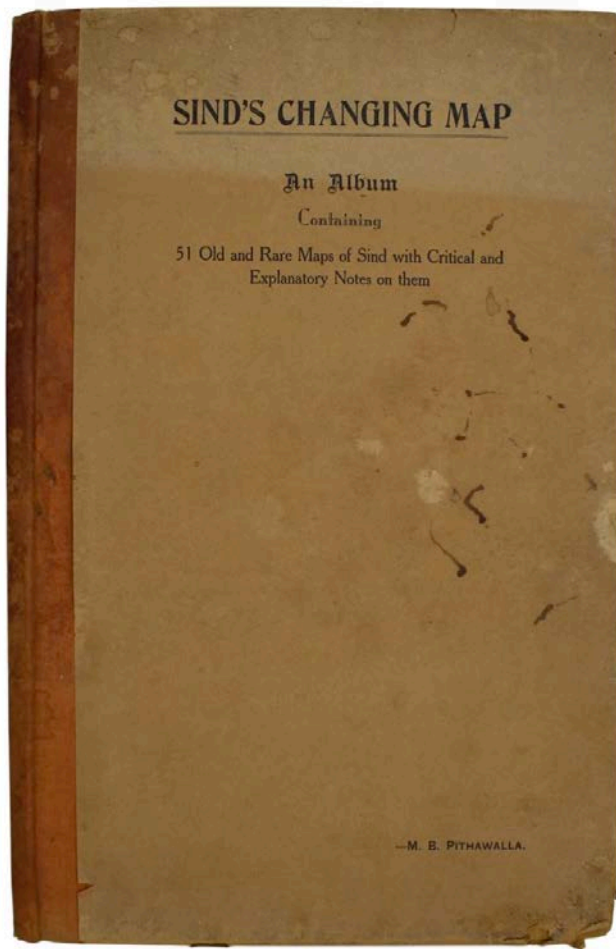

'Sind has throughout these millenniums preserved its individuality and unique position in Asia as a provincial and trading centre, the Indus valley and delta having been marked even in the oldest maps available, and Sind and Punjab having been merged into one natural region with prominent settlements of their own, due to the navigability of the Indus and the other Five Rivers'.

The sole edition, in original unsophisticated state, of an atlas documenting the changing landscape of the province of Sindh from the second century A.D. up to the Quetta earthquake of 1935.

The author provides critical notices for fifty-one maps depicting (at least in part) the geography of the Sindh, commencing with Ptolemy's Map (150 A. D.) - the oldest map of Sindh available - and continuing through the centuries with discussion of the likes of the Mercator Welt Karte (1569), Walter Payton's Map (1613), the Bombay Army Map (1850)

Manek Bejanji Pithawalla was the first Indian to obtain a doctorate of Geography in India. An authority on the topography of the Sindh, he was the author of several publications devoted to the region including Identification and description of some old sites in Sind and their relation with the physical geography of the region (Karachi, 1936) and A bibliography of Sind (publications of geographical value) (Karachi, 1939).

ADMINISTERING THE PUNJAB

38) [PUNJAB]. Selections from the records of the government of india, (foreign department.) Published by Authority. No. XVIII. General Report on the administration of the punjab territories, from 1854-55 to 1855-56 inclusive. Calcutta. John Gray, "Calcutta Gazette" Office, 1856.

8vo. xiii, 120, xxv pp, [1]. With four large folding maps. Original publisher's blind-stamped red cloth, lettered in gilt to upper board. Extremities worn and marked, joints split, remnants of paper label to foot of spine. Very occasional light spotting.

A rare survival of an administrative report for the frontier province of the Punjab following the annexation of the region by the East India Company in 1849.

The detailed review provides statistical analysis of, inter alia, the physical and political geography of the region; the effectiveness of policing and prisons; and the development of public works and military and civil buildings.

OCLC and COPAC combined record copies at just six locations (Cork, Minnesota, Oxford, RAS, Tübingen, and Yale).

Ten issues of the Camp Chronicle, a fortnightly magazine compiled by and issued for the entertainment of Royal Air Force servicemen stationed at Jodhpur during the Second World War.

The first issue of the magazine was published on Saturday 4th December 1943 and the periodical continued in an unbroken run until the final number appeared on Friday 16th December 1945 as the majority of personnel were demobilised.

The issues, individually priced at four Annas, in addition to providing notices concerning both local and foreign news and reports on the progress of the conflict contain a plethora of, frequently humorous and ribald, short stories, personal anecdotes, and poetry. The illustrations and occasional cartoons, usually rough pencil sketches, are more often than not satirical portraits of station life, though the occasional erotic female figure does feature. In all the Chronicle presents a revealing, and often intimate view of the daily life of the lower ranks of R.A.F. both during and immediately following wartime hostilities.

Institutionally, these are unsurprisingly rare: a selection of issues are held by the Imperial War Museum and the Canadian Museum of History respectively.

THE MUTINY IN SIALKOT

With a brief description of the Cantonment

1ST EDITION.

1,000 COPIES

41) RICH, Captain Gregory. The mutiny in sialkot: With a brief description of the Cantonment from 1852 to 1857.

[Sialkot Cantt.]. [Handa Printing Press], 1924. First edition.

12mo. Printed run stated to be 1,000 copies only. [4], iii, [3], 80pp. Contemporary tan cloth-backed black moiré cloth boards. Lightly rubbed and marked, corners exposed. Internally clean and crisp.

'Since coming to the station I have heard many tales of massacres that are said to have taken place in Sialkot during the mutiny; of ghost stories connected with different bungalows and the Church; and have often been asked for further details. In trying to discover what actually did occur, I found that most of the information was contained in old records and book long since out of print and of which only one or two copies are still available'.

The sole edition of succinct history of the Sepoy Rebellion in the Sialkot Cantonment, notably including accounts provided by survivors.

OCLC records copies at just seven locations (BL, Cambridge, Minnesota, NLS, Oxford, Toronto, UNSW).

UNRECORDED PROGRAMME, WITH SPACE FOR NOTES

- 42) [SHILLONG]. Programme: Visit of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India to Shillong.

[Shillong?]. [s.n.], [1937].

12mo. 32pp. With three terminal leaves, blank but for heading 'Diary and Notes'. Stapled, as issued, in original publisher's printed cream wrappers. Light spotting to extremities, staples rusted. Internally clean and crisp.

An apparently unrecorded programme announcing the itinerary of the visit of the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, Victor Alexander John Hope, 2nd marquess of Linlithgow's (1887-1952), to the city of Shillong in July 1937.

Marked as 'SECRET', the pamphlet was evidently intended solely for official use; to that end, following the timetable recording visits to various government institutions and reception dinners, three leaves are provided for the taking of additional notes.

It is unsurprising that there no records of the programme in institutional holdings, as according to the colophon only thirty-five copies were printed; this being number seven.

43) SPRENGER, A[loys]. A catalogue of the arabic, persian and hindu'sta'ny manuscripts, of the libraries of the king of oudh, compiled under the orders of the government of india.

Calcutta. Printed by J. Thomas, at the Baptist Mission Press, 1854. First edition.

8vo. Volume I only; all published. viii, 645pp, [3]. With a terminal leaf of errata. Later navy library cloth, lettered in gilt. Rubbed, head and foot of spine worn, corners bumped. Leaves browned. Armorial bookplate of the Thomas Greenwood Library for Librarians to FEP.

'The valuable literary works upwards of three thousand volumes are preserved in a garden bouse of the Môtý Mahall Palace, and elegant books are kept close to the Farah-bakhsh Palace in which the late king used to reside. This collection contains about one thousand volumes or less, and formed the private collection of His late Majesty. Books, in these two collections were kept in shelves, when I was at Lucknow, and were in tolerably good order, but lately, I hear, they have been given up to pillage!'

The first edition of Austrian orientalist Aloys Sprenger's (1813-1893) invaluable catalogue of the manuscripts preserved in the libraries of the king of Oudh, specifically those recording Persian and Hindustani poetry, an extensive collection which would be greatly depreciated due to theft during the tumult of the 1857 Sepoy Rebellion.

- 45) THORP, Robert. Cashmere misgovernment.
London. Longmans, Green, and Co., 1870. Second edition.

8vo. 80pp. Original publisher's printed tan wrappers. Rubbed and spotted, loss to head and foot of spine, old central vertical fold. Internally clean and crisp.

The second and final edition, published two years after the first, of a detailed survey of the land produce taxation system of Kashmir by British Indian Army officer Robert Thorp (1838-1868).

Between 1865 and 1868, Thorp travelled extensively through the region observing the plight of the Kashmiri people under despotic Dogra rule. His experiences - particularly regarding crippling tax rates leveled on the producers of agricultural produce and fabrics - led Thorp advocating for British intervention and annexation. His position, unsurprisingly, did not sit well with local rulers. Thorp died under mysterious circumstances aged thirty, having refused the request of authorities to vacate the region.
